Dear Families,

At the New York City Department of Education (DOE), we are working to ensure that our youngest learners with disabilities have access to the services they need, particularly during transition points. We are partnering with the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DOHMH) to improve the transition from Early Intervention (EI) to preschool, and have created this Guide with the goal of empowering you with more information about preschool options for your child. We hope that this information is helpful as you make decisions for your child.

We know just how challenging transitions can be for families of children with disabilities. In addition, the transition from EI to preschool is a crucial time when families need clear information and support. As you know, for children with developmental delays and disabilities between the ages of zero and three, services are provided by DOHMH through the Early Intervention Program (EIP). At the age of three, families have the option to join the DOE by submitting a referral to the Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE). Families can also apply for early childhood programs such as 3-K for All and EarlyLearn NYC.

We encourage you to become familiar with the information in this Guide and to discuss it with your child’s EI service coordinator, service providers, and teachers. Thank you for your continued commitment to your young child’s success and growth.

Sincerely,

Linda Chen
Chief Academic Officer
New York City Department of Education

Josh Wallack
Deputy Chancellor of Early Childhood
Education & Student Enrollment
New York City Department of Education
The infant, toddler, and early childhood years are a time of incredible development and growth. During this time, many children benefit from additional supports to help them learn and thrive. In New York City, children with developmental delays and disabilities under three may receive these supports through Early Intervention (EI), run by the Department of Health and Mental Hygiene (DOHMH). For children age three and older with an educational disability, which is a delay or disability that affects learning, the New York City Department of Education (DOE) has a variety of special education programs and services.

When transitioning out of EI, families may refer their child to the DOE’s Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE) if they believe their child may need services after EI. All children turning three may also be eligible for free or reduced cost early childhood education programs such as 3-K and EarlyLearn NYC.

This guide provides information that can help you understand your options as you prepare to transition from EI to preschool. It includes information about DOE early childhood education programs and about the transition process to preschool special education.

I. Early Childhood Care & Education Options

The City offers several early childhood care and education options for families of three- and four-year-olds, both with and without developmental delays and disabilities.

In order for your child to attend one of these programs, you will need to apply through the 3-K or Pre-K for All applications, or if eligible, directly with the EarlyLearn NYC provider. The Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE) does not arrange for placement in early childhood general education programs, such as 3-K, pre-K, or EarlyLearn NYC. If found eligible for preschool special education services, your child may be able receive preschool special education services in these programs. To learn more about making a referral to the CPSE for preschool special education programs and services, go to section II on page 7, Transition from Early Intervention to Preschool Special Education.

3-K for All
3-K for All programs offer free, full-day, high-quality education to three-year-old children in New York City. 3-K programs are available in a growing number of communities. To find out if your school district has 3-K for All, visit nyc.gov/3k. Applications are typically open in the Spring, for attendance in the Fall.

Pre-K for All
Pre-K for All programs offer free, full-day, high-quality education to four-year-old children in New York City. For information on Pre-K for All, visit nyc.gov/prek. Applications are typically open in the Spring, for attendance in the Fall.

3-K and Pre-K for All are offered in the following settings:
- District Schools. Some public elementary schools offer 3-K and pre-K programs. The school’s principal oversees these programs.
- Pre-K Centers. Pre-K Centers are run by DOE staff but only serve grades before kindergarten.
- NYC Early Education Centers (NYCEECs). Some community-based organizations provide 3-K and pre-K, and are supported by the DOE.
EarlyLearn NYC

EarlyLearn NYC provides free or low-cost child care and education for children from six weeks to four-years-old. EarlyLearn programs have income or other eligibility requirements. If you qualify, your child can begin a program any time during the year, as applications are open year-round.

EarlyLearn NYC is offered in the following settings:

- Child Care (Children 6 weeks – 4 years). EarlyLearn NYC Child Care programs provide early care and education services for up to 10 hours a day. These programs are available in two settings:
  - Center-based care for children ages six weeks to four years old.
  - Home-based care for children ages six weeks to three years old through family child care networks.

- Head Start (Children 3 – 4 years). EarlyLearn NYC Head Start programs provide free early care and education that supports the whole family. Head Start programs provide services for at least eight hours a day. Head Start programs are available in centers for children ages three-to four-years-old. There are also limited spaces available in Early Head Start programs, which serve pregnant mothers, infants, and toddlers. The best way to find out if your family is eligible for Head Start is to contact a program directly. You are automatically eligible if one or more of these categories applies to you:
  - You receive HRA Cash Assistance
  - You live in temporary housing
  - You receive SSI (Supplemental Security Insurance)
  - You are enrolling a child who is in foster care
  - Your income falls below a certain amount

II. Transition from Early Intervention to Preschool Special Education

As your child moves from Early Intervention (EI), it is important to know the following information to ensure a smooth transition.

Transition Meeting

You will begin talking to your Early Intervention (EI) Service Coordinator about your child’s transition at the Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP) closest to your child’s second birthday. At the meeting, you, your Early Intervention Official Designee, and your Early Intervention Service Coordinator come up with a Transition Plan together for your child. Additionally, you are entitled to have a Transition Conference, which can be arranged by your Early Intervention Service Coordinator who would invite a DOE Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE) representative. The purpose of this meeting is to learn more about the preschool special education process.

If you decide you would like your child to be evaluated for preschool special education services, you must submit a letter to your child’s CPSE. This letter is called an “initial referral.” Your EI Service Coordinator can help you write the letter or you can reach out to the CPSE for help in making a referral.
Preschool Special Education Process

The preschool special education process summarized below is described in detail in the NYCDOE Family Guide to Preschool Special Education Services (available at: https://www.schools.nyc.gov/special-education/preschool-to-age-21/moving-to-preschool).

1 Notification. Your Early Intervention (EI) Service Coordinator will talk with you about notifying the CPSE that your child may continue to need services after leaving EI. Sending notification to the CPSE does not mean that you are referring your child to the CPSE. If you decide not to notify the CPSE, you can still decide to refer your child to the CPSE later.

If you consent to notification, your EI Service Coordinator will send the Notification of Potential Eligibility form to the CPSE between 120 and 90 days before your child is eligible for referral. If you decide that you do not want the CPSE to be notified, you can check the opt-out option on the notification form.

2 Referral. If you think that your child may be eligible for preschool special education services, submit a referral letter to the CPSE as early as 120 days before your child first becomes eligible for preschool special education services (see eligibility timeframes below); and no later than 90 days before your child’s third birthday.

Your child’s EI service plan and evaluations may be very helpful as the CPSE is planning for your child's preschool evaluation. If you consent, your EI Service Coordinator will provide them to the CPSE.

If you do not refer your child to the CPSE, or if your child is not found eligible for CPSE, your child must leave EI on the day before their third birthday.

For children in foster care, the referral should be made by the birth or adoptive parent, unless the parents’ rights have been terminated, surrendered or limited; the parents have designated someone else as a “person in parental relation” for education purposes; or the parents’ whereabouts are unknown. If the birth or adoptive parents’ whereabouts are unknown, the DOE may appoint a surrogate parent (typically the foster parent) to make special education decisions for the child, when necessary. The foster care agency can also make a request for referral. When the request for a referral is made, the CPSE will review the request and accept or decline the referral.
3 Evaluation. After receiving your referral, the CPSE will send you a list of evaluation sites and other important information in the mail. You should review the list of evaluation sites to choose and schedule an appointment for an evaluation as soon as possible. Some children require a bilingual evaluation, which is conducted in both English and the child's home or native language. To help determine if your child needs a bilingual evaluation, a home language survey will be conducted to determine the language of assessment. If you would like help with choosing or contacting an evaluation site, contact your CPSE.

4 CPSE Meeting. After the evaluation results are complete, the CPSE will schedule a meeting with you. It is very important that you attend CPSE meetings so you can work together with the CPSE to make decisions about your child. At the meeting, the team will review the evaluation results, share and learn more about your child, and determine if your child is eligible for preschool special education services.

To be found eligible, the CPSE must determine that your child is a “preschool student with a disability.” This determination is based on evaluations showing that your child has a significant delay in development or an educational disability, which is a delay or disability that affects learning.

If your child is found eligible, the CPSE will work with you to develop an Individualized Education Program (IEP). An IEP is a plan that discusses your child's abilities and outlines the services that the New York City Department of Education (DOE) will provide free of charge to meet your child's educational needs.

The IEP will recommend an education program that is appropriate to meet your child’s needs in the least restrictive environment (LRE). Less restrictive environments allow children to receive services alongside general education students without IEPs to the greatest extent appropriate.

If the CPSE holds a meeting before your child’s third birthday and finds your child eligible for services, you can choose either: (a) to end EI services and begin preschool special education services as soon as your child is eligible for preschool special education services; or (b) to extend your child’s EI services depending on your child’s birth date.

5 Services. The CPSE Administrator will arrange for the programs, services, and supports recommended on your child’s IEP. See the next section on page 10 for more information about preschool special education programs and services.
Programs and Services Available to Preschool Students with IEPs

There is a range of programs and services available to support preschool students with Individualized Education Programs (IEPs). Preschool special education services fall along a continuum from less restrictive to more restrictive.

Less restrictive environments allow children to receive services alongside general education students without IEPs. More restrictive programs and services are available to children who require more specialized supports and services, in classrooms that only serve students with IEPs.

The most common programs and services are outlined below. For more detailed descriptions and for other programs and services, please see the NYCDOE Family Guide to Preschool Special Education Services, starting on page 21.

Note: Your child can also receive related services and/or SEIT at a private preschool or other non-public child care setting where you enroll and pay tuition for your child, or at home in some circumstances.
Arranging Programs & Services

After your child’s IEP is developed, the Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE) will ask you, the parent, for written permission to start services. This is called “informed consent” for services. After receiving your written consent, the CPSE will arrange for services to be provided. The CPSE is responsible for arranging all programs and services recommended on your child’s IEP. If you do not respond to the request for consent or if you deny consent, the CPSE will not arrange for services to be provided, and no further action will be taken.

The CPSE does not arrange for placement in early childhood general education programs. If you are interested in applying to DOE early childhood programs, see the previous section on pages 2–3. If your child attends one of these programs, your child’s related services and/or SEIT will be provided at the program.

All of your child’s IEP-recommended services will be provided at the preschool special education program.
Support Available in 3-K for All, Pre-K for All, or EarlyLearn NYC

If you choose not to make a referral to Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE), or if you make a referral to the CPSE and your child is found not to be eligible for preschool special education, your child can still access supports in general education.

Early childhood education settings such as 3-K, Pre-K for All, or EarlyLearn NYC offer a variety of supports. These programs have early childhood teachers that focus on developing children’s motor, language and literacy, and social-emotional skills. In a typical day, children will learn through large and small group activities, choice time, and play. Teachers adjust these learning experiences throughout the day, observing their children’s development over time. Programs also have access to resources such as early childhood Social Workers and Instructional Coordinators, who are available to assist programs with family engagement, social-emotional learning, and instruction.

- For more information on available general education programs, and to find contact information, you can visit MySchools.nyc.
- You can also learn more by calling the DOE Outreach team at 212-637-8000.
- If you have questions or need support transitioning from EI to preschool, you can contact eitopreschool@schools.nyc.gov.

III. Differences between Early Intervention and Preschool Special Education

Moving from Early Intervention (EI) to preschool special education may require an adjustment for you and your child. Preschool special education programs and services are different from EI services.

One major change is that your family will no longer have an Early Intervention Service Coordinator. Instead, you will work with a Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE) Administrator to develop your child’s Individualized Education Program (IEP), and the CPSE Administrator will be the primary point of contact through the CPSE process.

Additionally, your child may no longer receive their services in the same location as they did while in EI. Preschool special education services are most commonly provided in early childhood programs. Children with more significant needs may need a preschool special education class.
You can read a summary of the differences in the following table:

Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE):

The Committee on Preschool Special Education (CPSE) is responsible for coordinating the special education process for preschool children ages three to kindergarten (the year your child turns five). CPSEs work with families in the district where a family lives, regardless of where children receive services or go to preschool.

There are 10 CPSEs in different areas of the city. Each CPSE is part of a larger Committee on Special Education (CSE) office. A chairperson oversees the office, including the CPSE in it. If you do not know what school district you live in, call 311 or use MySchools.nyc to look up your district.

Each CPSE covers several school districts. You can find the contact information for your district’s CPSE in the table below or online at schools.nyc.gov/special-education/help/committees-on-special-education.
